COOLMINE THERAPEUTIC COMMUNITY PROGRAMME WINS TOP BROADCASTING AWARD!

At the Craol Achievement Awards held in Athlone, Coolmine Therapeutic Community's weekly Phoenix FM programme was presented with a Distinction Award by Broadcasting Authority of Ireland Chief Executive, Michael O'Keefe. The therapeutic community model is a treatment and rehabilitation approach where clients live in small structured drug-free communities. The goal is to encourage psychological and lifestyle changes to enable people to maintain a drug-free existence.

The treatment approach is based on peer support, and participants are expected to contribute to the general running of the community, and to their own recovery, by actively participating in educational activities and in group and individual therapy. This approach is featured in their weekly radio programmes at 11.30am every Friday on Phoenix 92.5FM, produced and presented by James who was delighted with the Judges' comments: "A Perfect example of a programme that is well researched and shows how Radio can reach out to the public by explaining how people work their way through life, getting on with their life and showing the kind of support that is out there and the great work that organisations like Coolmine do".

Two other Phoenix FM programmes received Merit Awards from the BAI CEO at the same event. One of Phoenix FM's longest running programmes "On Line on Air", presented by Carol O'Dwyer. The judges said "A hugely comprehensive and accessible IT show, interesting for geeks and newbies alike! The other programme is "Young at Heart" about Blanchardstown Active Retired is yet to be broadcast and the judges said "A pleasant well produced documentary".

REACH FOR THE STARS!

Pupils from Ladyswell National School in Mulhuddart were recently involved in the making of a three-part documentary broadcast on Phoenix FM, entitled 'Reach for the Stars'. The project involved 4th class children from the school going to Dunsink Observatory and taking part in three interactive workshops on astronomy with artist and astronomer Deirdre Kelleghan. The students produced wonderful pastel drawings of their favourite space objects which were on exhibition in Blanchardstown Library for two weeks and later exhibited at the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) annual conference in Vancouver! When asked one of the students pronounced the experience as 'deadly'. The series was produced by Susan King and made with the support of the Broadcasting Authority of Ireland.

TECH TIPS FOR VOLUNTEERS

- 🎧 Every show must have a running order. Make sure the Artist and the track you ACTUALLY play are on it
- 🎧 Always have something extra prepared. That guy you thought would talk to you for ten minutes won't answer his phone! Have you something else on standby to fill those ten minutes.
- 🎧 Always have a track lined up in the CD player, just in case... Computers do crash!
- 🎧 Don't shuffle your papers. It's always heard!
- 🎧 Record at least one generic back-up show that can be played if you can't make the show.
- 🎧 Leave the talk studio and control room as you would like to find it.

TECH TIPS FOR USING PORTABLE RECORDERS

- 🎧 Always record something BEFORE you leave the station, to check it's working properly.
- 🎧 Always use headphones. Your brain automatically filters out noise, the microphone can't.
- 🎧 Make sure you plug the external mic into the Left Channel that's labeled "mono" on the back of the recorder.
- 🎧 When you are finished recording an interview, play some of it back, to make sure it recorded

OUR TEXT LINE 085 10 50 181

Our new text message system is now in place in order to provide easier access to listener's feedback and keep track of stats on listeners' feedback. Messages go directly to the PC in the studio. Phoenix FM's Alan Maxwell will be happy to answer any questions and help you to get more familiar with the system.

WANT TO HOST OR RESEARCH YOUR OWN PROGRAMME?!

Volunteering at Phoenix FM is great fun. We are always looking for people to go out into the community to record interviews and produce features. Topics can include anything from consumer affairs, local bands, to activities in community centres, protest on the street or the environment. There are endless ways to get involved. Here are a few ideas:

You can research, interview interesting people, carry out vox-pops, act as presenter, producer, news reader, technician. You could act as a community watchdog, become our political/health/consumer/environment/etc correspondent, report on local government, theatre, art, history, current affairs. We always need help with promotion, marketing, fundraising, advertising, listener research, writing newsletters, managing promotional campaigns, training. You could become a trainer!

Got ideas yourself? The possibilities are endless.

Currently, we have 75 volunteers producing and presenting 50 hours of programming every week. We need a constant flow of new volunteers. Interested? We'll provide training. You can email annemarie@phoenixfm.ie or download a form from www.phoenixfm.ie
